
T-Mobile Kills off Current Sidekicks

Saturday, 03 July 2010

T-Mobile's Sidekick can be considered as one of the most successful business ventures for the company, as this particular device is one of the most widely used devices in the market. However, the Sidekick quickly fell short when consumers discovered so many flaws in the device.

In direct response to this, T-Mobile has decided to discontinue the Sidekicks, whereby effective on July the 2nd, T-Mobile will be pulling the plug on all Sidekicks in the market. Generally, the Sidekick LX 2009 will no longer be available for purchase. However, T-Mobile promises that they will introduce a brand new Sidekick franchise, and asked consumers to stay tune for a fresh new experience.

I guess that this will be an official good bye to the Sidekicks!

{mosgoogle}